

THE NO-STRESS GUIDE

Connect Claude to your Google Calendar |

Right from the Claude app on your iPhone. No tech degree required.

Takes about 3 minutes.

You'll tap through a few screens once. After that, Claude can check your calendar and add events whenever you ask – you never re-do this.

Do this once. Have your Google email and password handy – that's the only thing you'll need to type.

1

Open the Claude app and make sure it's updated

Open the App Store, search “Claude,” and tap Update if it shows one. Then open Claude and sign in with the account you use.

If it says “Open” not “Update,” you’re already current.

2

Go to Settings

Tap your initials or the menu (the three lines) in the top corner. Tap Settings.

Look for the little gear or your profile circle.

3

Tap Connectors

In Settings, find and tap Connectors (sometimes under “Data controls”). This is the list of apps Claude can talk to.

4

Find Google Calendar and tap Connect

Look for Google Calendar in the list. If you don't see it, tap “Browse connectors” and search for it. Then tap Connect.

Gmail and Google Drive live here too – you only need Calendar.

5

Sign in to Google and pick your account

A Google window pops up. Choose the Google account whose calendar you want, then type your password if it asks.

■ This is Google's own screen – that's normal and safe.

6

Say yes to the permissions

Google asks if Claude can see and manage your calendar. Tap Continue / Allow. To let Claude add and change events, leave the boxes checked.

■ Claude only ever touches your calendar when you ask it to.

7

You're connected

Claude bounces you back to the app. Google Calendar now shows as connected. That's it – you never have to do this again.

TRY IT NOW

Start a new chat and type:

“What's on my calendar this week?” ■

Claude will ask permission the first time it peeks – tap Allow. If it reads back your week, you did it perfectly.

Copy any of these into a chat. Claude will always ask before it changes anything.

Add “dentist – Mia” to my calendar next Tuesday at 3pm.

What do I have going on this weekend?

Find me a free hour for a walk this week.

Move my 2pm call tomorrow to Thursday morning.

Set a reminder for spirit week – it's the last week of the month.

TWO THINGS TO KNOW

It can't change anything without you.

Claude asks before it adds, moves, or deletes anything. You tap yes.

Your info stays yours.

Claude only looks when you ask, and never sees more than you already can.
